

TAMBURINI

SINCE 1890

Five generations brought together by their passion for viticulture and olives, and by their love for products of excellence.

The management of the Tamburini estate has always been based on combining a passion for tradition with the use of the best techniques to produce the finest wines and products.

In particular, a major agricultural and technological refresh has been underway since 2002, involving 30 hectares of vines and 1,000 olive trees.

Courtesy of such constant attention, Tamburini wines and other products from the estate are now sold around the world. Tamburini exports world-renowned wines such as Chianti DOCG, Brunello di Montalcino and other labels that represent the very best of Tuscany.

TAMBURINI ESTATE

The Agricola Tamburini property covers an area of fifty hectares, including vineyards in Chianti and Montalcino (30 hectares), olive groves, and forestland. The historic site of the Agricola Tamburini firm is in Gambassi Terme, in the Chianti region; a new winery has recently been inaugurated in Montalcino. The Chianti location, housed in a medieval monastery, is outfitted with tasting rooms, offices, a lodge for visitors, and a modern winery dedicated to the making of quality wines through the use of the most advanced equipment available. Agricola Tamburini produces wines, grappa, and organic extra-virgin olive oil, and its products are widely distributed and sold outside of Italy.

The Tamburini Winery raises worldwide awareness of local Tuscan wines and products from its historic home in the spa town of Gambassi Terme.

The estate is delighted to be able to open its cellars and vineyards to the general public. The itinerary includes a visit to our historic facility in Gambassi Terme, our vineyards and a dégustation of our products: wines, olive oils and liqueurs.

In support of our business partner, the Tamburini Winery can organise events and tastings abroad, to foster learning about wine culture and wine-making techniques.

THE HISTORY

1890

The Tamburini Family's first wine business is established. Great-great-grandfather Franco plants the first vineyards and begins production of Chianti and olive oil.

1930

The family tradition continues as Franco's son, Italo, expands both the firm's cultivated land and production capacity, maintaining the high standards of quality and deep respect for the land inherited from his father.

1967

Mauro, Italo's son, carries on the family business, further expanding the firm's vineyards to their current size of approximately fifty hectares.

2002

Mauro's daughter Emanuela enters the firm, initiating a new and significant investment in the improvement of production and vineyard technologies. Emanuela, professionally trained in enology, modifies the firm's approach to the production and sale of its wines.

2005

The entire Tamburini production of extra-virgin olive oil is Certified Organic.

2013

Tamburini expands from its headquarters in Chianti to a second site in Montalcino where DOCG ("designation of origin guaranteed") Brunello di Montalcino is made.

2015

The winery continues to experiment and believe in innovation, resulting in the "Douscana" project: an encounter between the wines of the Douro valley, Portugal, and those made with the Tuscan grape Sangiovese. The upshot is a unique product, a limited edition once again aimed at demonstrating the quality and potential of the winery's cépages.

2020

In a difficult year the world over, Tamburini has welcomed Michele Jermann, who has brought his savoir-faire to the promotion and commercial development of the winery, both in the Italian market and abroad.
